Substance Abuse

The Department of Veterans Affairs has put together a Substance Use Disorder Mini-Clinic. This will provide clinicians with easy access to useful Veteran focused treatment tools. Substance use and dependence basics, assessing for a substance use problem, client educational materials, treatment & training and more. http://www.mentalhealth.va.gov/communityproviders/clinic_sud.asp

The Department of Defense (DoD) has made it a priority for health professionals to implement evidence-based Clinical Practice Guidelines (CPGs) to improve and standardize the quality of care provided to its beneficiaries. CPGs contain recommendations based on evidence from a systematic review and synthesis of published medical literature. CPGs can improve the quality of clinical decisions. If carefully followed and implemented under the right circumstances, CPGs can further benefit health professionals by:

- Offering clear recommendations for practitioners who are uncertain about how to proceed.
- Providing a more rational basis for referral.
- Promoting efficient use of resources.
- Providing authoritative recommendations that reassure practitioners about the appropriateness of their treatment decisions.
- Improving the consistency of care.
